Introduction

One hundred years on from armistice and the names of the soldiers that gave their lives remains fresh. Whilst the names remain fresh, with many being on the War Memorial or the Roll of Honour in St. Mary's Church, the individuals behind those names are often forgotten. An attempt has been made to identify each name on the memorial and Church Roll. That is, where possible the military details of each soldier have been identified and their civilian details.

Unfortunately, it has not been possible to identify every soldier. However, research will continue and details for the soldiers will be revised.

Links to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission (CWGC), Imperial War Museum (IWM) and West Berkshire War Memorials are given should you wish to find out more information on an individual.

Other researchers have been undertaking similar tasks and special thanks must be made to Phil Wood who has produced the website, West Berkshire War Memorials, and has kindly allowed reproduction of many of the materials used within this document.
Memorials

There is a War Memorial and a Roll of Honour in St Mary’s Church, both unveiled shortly after the end of the war. Initially both had 103 names on, however they were not necessarily the same names, some have been altered, some added, and some removed. At the start of the 100 year anniversary there were 108 names on the War Memorial, there are now 117.

The War Memorial is presently situated on the West side of Thatcham along the A4. However, it has not always been there. In 1918 an application was made to the War Office for a captured gun. This was approved in 1919 along with the design for the memorial. The memorial was erected, at the top of the Broadway, in 1919 but not officially unveiled until Armistice Day in 1920.

A write up from the 18th November 1920 Newbury Weekly News describes the unveiling ceremony:

Thatcham's Tribute

Memorial Cross in The Broadway

Thatcham honoured the memory of its gallant dead by assembling in large numbers at three o'clock on Thursday afternoon to witness the unveiling and dedication of the Memorial Cross erected in the Broadway to commemorate the names of those from the village who fell in the Great War. It was a simple but impressive ceremony, lasting about half-an-hour, after which the people made a close inspection of the memorial, laying many beautiful wreaths and bunches of flowers at its base.

The Memorial Cross

The memorial is in the form of a Wayside Cross, made of Doulting stone, seventeen feet in height, with a hexagonal base of three platforms, the designer being Sir Charles Nicholson of London. Upon the front slab of the cross appears the following:-

"To the glorious memory of the Men of Thatcham, who, serving in the Royal Navy and in the Army, gave their lives for their country in the Great War, 1914-1918."

On the remaining five slabs are inscribed the names of the men who fell as follows:-

The German Gun

A newly painted German howitzer captured by the First Battalion of the County Regiment had been placed behind the cross on the morning of the day for its unveiling. A tablet on the ground between the cross and the gun read:-

"German howitzer captured by 1st Battalion Royal Berks Regiment, presented to the village of Thatcham as a tribute to the memory of 2nd Lieut A B Turner, of Thatcham House, who was awarded the VC for his gallantry at Fosse, near Vermelles, on 28th September, and died of wounds received there on 1st October, 1915."

Church Service and Procession

Before the unveiling ceremony took place, a service was held at the Parish Church, where prayers were offered by the curate, Rev A S Hazel; John S Arkwright's "The supreme sacrifice" was sung; and a short address was given by the Vicar, The Rev W S
Grindle (Vicar of Cold Ash) was also present. Mr G J Fyfield, ARCO, was at the organ. With the verger at its head, a procession then wended its way from the church to the Broadway, where a large rectangle was formed. Behind the memorials stood the clergy and the united choirs of all denominations, also several of the gentry and villagers. Immediately facing the front of the cross in two ranks were ex-service men, who formed a guard of honour. In a prominent position in the foreground were two uniformed buglers of the Berkshire Regiment, Spencer and Durbridge. On the east and west sides were lined up children of the Council School, National School and Crookham School, under the supervision of masters and teachers; Girl Guides and Brownies, commanded by Miss Turner and Miss Pear MBE, and Boy Scouts with Patrol Leaders Fairchild and Turner in charge. Many relatives of the fallen and hundreds of villagers stood in reverent silence to watch the ceremony. The memorial cross was draped with two huge Union Jacks.

The Unveiling and Dedication

The first hymn to be sung was "O God our help in ages past," which was followed by passages of Scripture, Heb xi, 32-40; xii, 1-2; and Rev viii, 13-17; read by the Congregational Church pastor, the Rev John Stay. Then Major Charles Turner, JP, stepped forward and asked Major-General E T Dickson, of the Royal Berks Regiment, to unveil the memorial. General Dickson, who was wearing a black armlet on his left arm, and stood with cap in hand, said he had just travelled from London, where the King and people had been engaged in paying a last tribute of respect to the memory of an Unknown Warrior. He was about to unveil a memorial to warriors who were well known to them. He would not say more, but would like to recite the words of a beautiful anthem:-

"Father, we bring our dead to Thee.
And Thou wilt fold them closely on Thy breast,
And for a little season they shall be At Rest
Loved ones, they bore our honour well,
In storm-swept rampart and on dreadful deep,
'Till this new Glory touched them and they fell Asleep.
A little sleep before the dawn,
A veil of shadow over weary eyes,
And then shall come a trumpet call at morn,
Arise!"

General Dickson then pulled the cord, and the flags enveloping the cross fell to the ground. Major Turner removed the flag covering the plate in front of the gun. The General Salute was sounded by the buglers. Prayers were read by the Vicar (Rev E Chamberlain), who then dedicated the cross, "To the honour and glory of God, and in memory of those whose lives had been given in the service of their King and Country." Other prayers followed, and the hymn, "For all the saints," was feelingly sung. The Blessing, the Last Post sounded by buglers, and the National Anthem brought the ceremony to a close. Half-muffled peals were rung on the bells before and after the service.

Amongst those present were Major and Mrs C Turner, Miss Tull, Mr A S B Tull, Mrs Branwell Davis, Mr and Mrs A Brown, Mr and Mrs T H Brown, Mr J M Henry, Miss A L Henry, Mr W Draper, Mrs Wyatt, Mr and Mrs Skillman, Mrs Martin, Mr and Mrs Sheppard, Mr Harman, Mr J Lane, etc. A letter of apology for absence was received from Admiral Sir Arthur Fanshaw. The floral tokens placed on the memorial immediately after its unveiling on Thursday were from Thatcham House, Mrs Glastonbury, from School Teachers and Children of Church of England School, Organist and Choir, Clergy and others; from all at Coombe Lodge; Mr and Miss Tull and Mrs P Bramwell Davis, Miss Henry, Dr and Mrs T Martin, Bell-ringers, to F G Breach, Charles Powell, Cyril Rutter, Martin (from home), Arthur G Fisher, from wife; Mother, Sister and Emily. A Gibbs, Harold Rosier, Sig H Farley, F Marchant, Arthur Pinnock, to Jim; and others. Many other flowers have since been added.
Soldiers

Within this section are details for every soldier that appears on the War Memorial and Church Roll. Whilst every effort has been made to ensure details are correct, there may exist some errors. Unfortunately, it has not been possible to identify every soldier on the memorials.

For each soldier an attempt has been made to identify their military details and their family details. In particular, where possible, their connection to Thatcham and any memorials other than those in Thatcham are identified.

Details of each soldier have been split into civilian and military. Details of their family are included where known and a summary of their military service is given. Links to the Commonwealth War Graves Commission (CWGC), Imperial War Museum (IWM) and West Berkshire War Memorials are given should you wish to find out more information on an individual.

Please note where “Unknown” is placed for a sibling it means there is a sibling their but their name is not known.
Private Frederick Allen

Frederick was born, about 1882, in Ecchinswell to George and Emma. By 1901 he had enlisted and was stationed in Reading. After his service and no later than 1911 he had moved to Thatcham, lodging with the Bye family in Northfield Road.

- Additional details:
  - He is shown as ‘James H Allen’ on the Midgham War Memorial.
  - J H Allen was one of nine soldiers added to the Thatcham war memorial in November 2018.
James Henry Allen was born, according to his service record, at Wooburn Green, Bucks on 21 February 1897, the son of Richard Allen and his wife Ada née Castle. However, it seems that James was a little confused about his birth. His parents were from Wooburn Green and had married there in 1889, but they had moved to Silverton in Devon shortly before James arrived - in 1898 according to his birth registration. His father was an engine fitter and seems to have moved around the country following his trade. By 1911 the family had reached Berkshire, living at 81 Belmont Road, Reading. By the time of their son's death they had moved again, to 'Oakdene', 33 London Road, Thatcham. James was employed as a stableman, very possibly in Midgham, for his name is on Midgham's war memorial, not Thatcham's.

On 24 November 1915 he joined the Royal Navy at Chatham for 12 years (according to his version of his birth he was 18). His record shows that he was 5 feet 8 inches tall had a chest size of 37 inches, brown hair, grey eyes and a fresh complexion - and a scar on his right ankle.

His initial training took place at HMS Pembroke, the shore establishment at the Royal Naval Barracks, Chatham. Following his basic training James was posted, on 28 March 1916, to HMS Wallington, another shore establishment on the Humber, but his time was not all spent on shore. Wallington was an Auxiliary Patrol Base out which a number of small vessels carried out patrols at sea, James became part of the crew of an aging small river class destroyer, HMS Ouse. HMS Ouse was taken out of service in early 1917 and James went back on to the books of HMS Pembroke. On 10 October 1917 he was posted to HMS Hecla, a depot ship that acted as the base for the 2nd Destroyer Flotilla, including HMS Mosquito on which James served.
His next posting (8 April 1918) to HMS Idaho (a shore station at Milford Haven) saw him serving on a smaller ship, the Kildorrey, a Kil class gunboat. From Milford Haven the Kildorrey was moved to a Liverpool shore station (HMS Eaglet). On 1 November 1918 James left the Kildorrey and moved ashore. This may have been due to illness, certainly he was admitted to Hemmingford Street Military Hospital, Liverpool, where he died of pneumonia (probably a victim of the influenza epidemic) on 6 December 1918.

His body was returned to Thatcham where he was buried in the town cemetery in plot 881.

Newbury Weekly News, 19 December 1918

The Funeral took place on Thursday at the cemetery, of James Henry, fourth son of Mr and Mrs Allen, of Oakdene, London-road. "Jim," as, perhaps, he was best known, was with Mr David Collings, in the boot repairing, for some 12 months. He joined the Navy about three years ago, where he still was when he contracted influenza, seven weeks ago. He had seen service, principally on the "Ouse," the "Mosquito," and lastly the Kildorry." The coffin was inscribed: "James Henry Allen, died Dec 6th 1918, aged 21 years," and was borne from his home draped with the Union Jack, and covered with floral tokens. The first part of the service was held in the Parish Church, the Rev H Pickels officiating. The mourners were: Mr and Mrs Allen (father and mother), Ada, Fred, Annie, Bertie (brothers and sisters), Willie and Nellie, Arthur and Leila, Mrs Collings and Mrs Frances, etc. The flowers included, an anchor from father, mother, brothers and sisters, uncle and aunt, Mr and Mrs J M Henry, Mrs Collongs and Mr Fred Brooks, Mrs E and Mrs F Williams. Another brother is serving in the Army and one in the Navy. The funeral arrangements were carried out by Mr H D Mayers.

James Allen is commemorated on the Midgham war memorial and on the roll of honour in St Mary's church, Thatcham.

Thanks to Carol and Valerie Pike for their contribution to this story.

Private Allwood by West Berkshire War Memorials

Harry was born in 1895, the son of Sarah Ann Allwood, a widow from Crookham. His middle name, Baker, was a pointer to his father, Henry William Baker. Although Harry was born illegitimate his parents married soon after his birth. His father (also known as Harry) was a game keeper, as was his father. At the time of the 1901 census he gave his occupation as ‘living on own means’, suggesting that he had retired – at the age of 39. This seems unlikely, but it may be an indication that Henry’s health was failing. He died on 24 May 1903 aged only 42. For Sarah Ann this was her second experience of widowhood, her first husband, Charles Allwood had also died young. Sarah herself did not live to an old age, she passed away on 21 December 1908, aged 49.

Eleven year old Harry was left an orphan and was taken in by Sarah’s parents, Charles and Emma Goodchild who lived in Brimpton. Following his schooling he was employed as an under gardener at a local house before moving on to adult employment as a carter. This was the occupation he gave when he attested for military service on 9 December 1915, aged 20 years 10 months. At this date attestation was taken under the ‘Derby scheme’, named after Lord Derby, Director General of Recruiting. This scheme encouraged men aged between 18 and 40 to register for service at an unspecified later date. The younger and fitter you were, the faster your services were likely to be required. Harry did not have to wait long, on 8 February 1916 he was called up into the 3rd Battalion, Royal Berkshire Regiment. The 3rd Battalion, was a training/depot Battalion, that operated as resource for the fighting battalions, sending men out as required to keep the active units operational.

Following a period of training (usually around 3 or 4 months) Harry was posted to the 2nd Battalion, a regular Battalion, that had been brought back from India when war broke out and had been fighting ever since. It is not known whether Harry had joined the Battalion, by 1 July, if he did he would have been with the Battalion, during their darkest hour. On the first day of the Battle of the Somme the 2nd Berks lost over half of their men and almost all their officers as part of the first wave over the top at Ovillers La Boiselle. However, it is more likely that Harry went out to France as one of the many replacements sent out to re-establish the shattered Battalion, as a fighting unit.
By October the Battalion, was evidently considered ready to take part in another offensive, the final one of the Battle of the Somme, also known as the Battle of Le Transloy. The offensive started on 1 October 1916 and was an attempt to break through new German lines along a ridge of land south of Bapaume, just a few miles east of Ovillers La Boiselle. The offensive started well but got bogged down in the mud as the autumn rain turned the terrain into a quagmire. On the afternoon of the 23 October the Battalion, was in support of battalions of the Rifle Brigade and the Lincolnshire Regiment in an attack on the German positions known as Zenith Trench. All three battalions suffered heavy casualties.

Major Hanbury-Sparrow of the 2nd Royal Berks gives his recollections:

_The shattered remains of Zenith and Eclipse trenches guarded Le Transloy. The day was foggy and the attack on these two trenches was, in consequence, postponed till 3 p.m. Punctually to the minute fell the most fearful barrage you had ever heard. The Guards' artillery was backing us. They were firing a barrage such as their infantry found adequate. There could be no excuse for failure. The noise was so unbroken as to produce the effect of a grand silence through which came the rapid fire of the eighteen-pounder quick-firers like the rat-tat-tat of a giant machine-gun. The battalion, and with it the company you commanded, was in support, jammed in a communication trench. Cascades of earth rose silent in the din and fog. The air quivered and pulsed, making you feel as you had at Bois Grenier, one with the battlefield._

_No, you weren't afraid as long as the sound was unbroken. Let there be the least gap in the wall of sound and you'd have flowed to it, only to have got caught and jarred by the next_ explosion. But this unbroken continuity is your saving. You get out of the trench and run up and down alongside, seeing to things in the company, so that your sergeant-major implores you to come in.

The attack has started. You send an officer forward to report how it is progressing, for you can see nothing in the fog. He never comes back, for he is killed. Poor boy, it was his first battle!

Then comes the news. The attack has failed. Poor old Division.

In the early hours of the following day (when they were reinforced by men from the Royal Irish Rifles and the Durham Light Infantry) they tried once more to capture Zenith Trench, and failed again.

The Commonwealth War Graves commission shows a number (over thirty) men from the 2nd Berks as dying on 28 October, the day following the battalion’s withdrawal to a reserve position. The Battalion war diary for the day reads: The Battalion, proceeded to "F" Camp, and remained in camp that night. It seems likely that these men, Harry Allwood among them, died in action on 23/24 October and that their passing was recorded during this day of rest as the Battalion, HQ staff sorted out the inevitable paperwork, perhaps mistakenly putting the current date rather than the date of the action on the casualty reports.

Harry’s body was never identified among the fallen, he may still lie where he fell or in one of the thousands of graves of unidentified soldiers in the nearby war cemeteries. His name is commemorated on the vast memorial at Thiepval on pier 11 and face D. He is also remembered on his parent’s gravestone in the churchyard of St
Peter’s, Brimpton, on the Thatcham War Memorial and on the roll of honour in St Mary’s Church, Thatcham.

Harry Baker - inscription masked by lichen on his parent's gravestone at Brimpton

The gravestone (right) has led to some confusion as it only shows his forenames, Harry Baker, on a stone for his parents, Henry and Sarah Baker. Obviously the omission of his surname may have avoided some family embarrassment for his elderly grandparents, who must have arranged for his name to be added to their daughter's stone. However, it has led some (including me) to a fruitless search for a deceased soldier with the surname Baker.

Thanks to Doris Butler for the information about the Brimpton gravestone, to John Chapman for Major Hanbury-Sparrow's words and to the members of the Great War Forum who attempted to track down Pte Harry Baker.

Albert was born in Hungerford in 1890, the son of farm worker, Henry Amor, and his wife Mary, née North.

His name is the cause of some confusion, as he is found in various records with differing second names - Sidney or Thomas. However, the records of the Royal Berkshire Regiment tie the two together as both Albert Sidney and Albert Thomas are recorded in the 1st/4th Battalion, with the service number 2399.

His birth is registered in the Oct-Dec quarter of 1890 as Albert Thomas and it is Albert T who appears with his parents and many siblings in the 1891 census, aged 7 months.

Albert came to Thatcham to work as a paper maker, probably at the Colthrop Mill. He lodged with his brother George (also a paper maker) and his family in Northfield Road.

He also signed up for some part-time soldiering as a member of the Territorial Battalion, of the Royal Berkshire Regiment (the 4th Battalion). On the day after war was declared the Battalion, arrived at their annual camp outside Marlow after a two mile march in the rain. The camp was cancelled and the men were woken at 2.30am and put on a train back to Reading arriving at 6.30am. Normally they would have been sent home after the camp, but not on this occasion; they hung around the Brock Barracks in Reading waiting for news. The following day (4 August 1914) at 7.20pm the news they had been expecting arrived - the Battalion, was to mobilise. They were ordered to join the South Midland Division currently forming at Swindon.

Territorials signed up to serve in the UK, at this early stage of the war, before they could be sent to France or any other overseas theatre of war, they had to agree to a change in the conditions of their service.
Some 70% of the Battalion, volunteered to fight, the remainder, and some deemed unfit for active service, becoming part of a newly formed 2nd/4th Battalion. They were soon back up to full strength as, at this time, around 50 more men were arriving each day. The Battalion, was sent to Chelmsford for training, arriving on 29 August. They remained there until late March 1915 when they entrained for Southampton and crossed to Boulogne.

The local paper reported the news:

Newbury Weekly News, 1 April 1915

_The now presumed departure of the Berks Service Battalion, of Territorial’s now known as the 1st/4th Royal Berks for the actual field of war involves four of our local roll. Namely Sgt P H Rutter, Lance Corporals H Pearson, Alfred Wallington and A Amor. The three former were turners at J Brown and Sons and the other day the employees sent a telegram to their erstwhile shop mates wishing them success safety and an early return. This wish will be endorsed by the wide public in the village. It is stated that they crossed to France on Tuesday night._

For the following year Albert and the Battalion, lived life on the front, periods manning trenches separated by much longer periods of relative inactivity - though the men would always be kept busy training or at some task or another. Losses were incurred through sniping and shelling or to men sent into no-man's land on patrol but they were not involved in any major actions. During this period Albert was promoted to Sergeant - a very responsible position, demonstrating the respect he must have generated in both the men he commanded and the officers who commanded him.
On 16 May 1915 their most serious action to date took place when the Germans attacked their trenches in force following an artillery barrage. The Battalion suffered heavily losing 98 men (18 killed, 29 missing), B Company being reduced to half its strength. Most of the missing later turned up as prisoners of war (PoWs).

Records show that Albert was killed in action on 25 May 1916 and that his body was not identified - his name being recorded on the Thiepval Memorial (Pier 11 & Face D).

!Albert's name on the Thiepval Memorial

This date is odd, on that day the Battalion, war diary records that they were billeted at Beauval, well behind the front, and the most they had to face was a thunderstorm that delayed a route march (something to keep the men fit and occupied) from the morning to the afternoon.

It seems more likely that Albert died during the action in the early hours of 16 May or from wounds received that night.

He is remembered on the Thatcham Town War Memorial and on the roll of honour in St Mary's Church, Thatcham.

Hatfield undertook his degree at Gonville and Caius College, Cambridge in 1912 and then went on to Leeds Clerical School. He was ordained deacon in 1914. He came to Thatcham to serve his first curacy, living over Green’s shop in the High Street. He was then ordained priest in 1915. He left in Left 1916/7 to serve as a naval chaplain. The Vanguard was at Scapa Flow on 9 July 1917. During the day the crew had been conducting exercises including abandoning ship. She anchored towards the north of Scapa Flow around 6.30pm. All was fine until about 11.30pm when an explosion occurred. It is believed that the explosion was triggered when a magazine caught fire causing other items to ignite. The resulting explosion killed 804 people.

  - Henry enlisted on 11 June 1908, aged just 16. In 1911 he is shown as being at Dover Castle. Where he gives his age as 21 when he was actually a few years younger.
  - Henry is also listed on the Newbury Town War Memorial as ‘H E Breach’ and on the roll of honour in St Nicolas Church, Newbury where he is listed as ‘H E Breach’.
Henry was born in Thatcham in early 1892, the eldest son and second child of Henry Edwin Breach and his wife, Ada Caroline (née Denness). He was baptised on 6 March 1892 at St Mary’s church, Thatcham. At the baptism his father gave his occupation as ‘engineer’, quite what this entailed is not clear although he does qualify it in the 1891 census to ‘Engineer Beaterman at Paper mills’. Presumably he was looking after machinery at the mills, which would most likely have been those at Colthrop to the east of Thatcham.

During the early years of their marriage Henry Edwin senior and Ada lived in Thatcham Newtown (to the west of central Thatcham) but moved to West End, Brimpton ca 1904. Theirs was a productive marriage, they had at least 12 children – mainly girls: Mary Ann (1890), Florence Amy (1895), Winifred Ada (1897), Ellen Matilda (1899), Daisy Blanch (1901), Mabel (1903), Elsie May (1906), Ethel Elizabeth (1907), Alice (1910) and Rose (1910), but there were two sons, Henry Edwin (1892) and Frederick George (1893).

Henry decided early in life to experience the military life; he enlisted with the local regiment, the Royal Berkshires, on 11 June 1908, aged only 16. At that age he would not have been sent into a combat area, however, he may well have lied about his age - in his entry in the 1911 census, when he was serving with the 1st Battalion, Royal Berkshire Regiment at Dover Castle, his age is shown as 21 – when he was, in fact, two years younger.

He would have been discharged to the Reserve before war broke out in 1914 (a typical enlistment was for 12 years, five with the colours and seven in the Reserve). As the Reserve was immediately mobilised when war was declared he would, in any case have been in uniform within days. This can be seen to be the case for he was with the 1st Battalion, when it crossed to France on 13 August 1914, only nine days after the declaration of war.

With the 1st Battalion, he would have taken part in a number of actions, from the initial encounter with the Germans at Mons, through the retreat to the Marne and the subsequent advance and establishment of the trench lines that typify the Great War on the Western Front. In 1915 Henry took part in the battles at La Bassée and Neuve Chappelle and was wounded on 22 December 1915 when the Battalion, took over a series of trenches at Cambrin, a French village between Neuve Chappelle and Loos. His wound earned him a trip home and he was able to visit his family for the last time on 9 February 1916.

Henry returned to his unit a few days later and was wounded again on 1 March 1916 while the Battalion, was in trenches near Souchez. This time there was to be no trip home; he died of his wounds four days later on 5 March 1916. He died at a Casualty Clearing Station (a forward hospital) at Lillers about 22 miles north-east of Souchez. At that time both the 6th and 58th Casualty Clearing Stations were at Lillers; it is not known which was treating Henry.

He was buried in grave IV.E.31 in the Lillers Communal Cemetery (the local town graveyard).

The news of his death soon reached Newbury:
The ill-fated news has been received by Mr and Mrs Breach, of 13, Victoria-Street, Victoria Park, Newbury, of the death of their son, Pte H Breach, of the 1st Royal Berks Regiment, and the age of 23. The deceased enrolled on the announcement of hostilities in August, 1914, and left in the following month with the British Expeditionary Force for France, going through the battles of Mons, La Bassé, Neuve Chapelle and others. He returned home for a seven days leave on August 10th, 1915. Having been slightly wounded on the 22nd December, he was allowed another opportunity of visiting his home on the 9th February. The rest proved beneficial and he returned to the firing line, but was wounded on the 1st of March, and died on the 5th, being buried in the churchyard at Lillers. The death of their much-loved son causes a cloud of sadness to rest upon the parents and other members of the family, but they have the satisfaction of knowing no one could be a braver soldier and more loyal an Englishman.

Henry's name on Newbury War Memorial - immediately above that of his brother Henry.

Locally Henry is remembered on the Newbury Town War Memorial, the memorial board and roll of honour in St Nicolas Church, Newbury, and the Thatcham War Memorial.

His younger brother, Frederick served in the same Battalion, and died a few months later during the Battle of the Somme. Frederick is remembered on the same memorials as his brother and also the memorial board in St Mary’s Church, Thatcham. It is not clear why
Henry was omitted from this memorial, though it appears that his connection with Thatcham was less than that of Frederick, who went back to live and work in their childhood parish.

Their mother Ada must have been shattered by the loss of both of her sons but more bad news was to follow; her cousin Harry Denness (son of her uncle, Edmund) died in December 1917, also serving with the 1st Battalion, Royal Berks; and her nephew Godfrey Denness (son of her brother Thomas) died in August 1917 while serving with the 15th Battalion, Hampshire Regiment. Both are remembered on the same Thatcham memorials as Frederick Breach.

Private Breach by West Berkshire War Memorials

Frederick was born in Thatcham in 1893, the second son and third child of Henry Edwin Breach and his wife, Ada Caroline (née Denness). He was baptised on 1 October 1893 at St Mary’s Church, Thatcham. At the baptism his father gave his occupation as ‘engineer’, quite what this entailed is not clear although he does qualify it in the 1891 census to ‘Engineer Beaterman at Paper mills’. Presumably he was looking after machinery at the mills, which would most likely have been those at Colthrop to the east of Thatcham.

During the early years of their marriage Henry Edwin senior and Ada lived in Thatcham Newtown (to the west of central Thatcham) but moved to West End, Brimpton ca 1904. Theirs was a productive marriage, they had at least 12 children – mainly girls: Mary Ann (1890), Florence Amy (1895), Winifred Ada (1897), Ellen Matilda (1899), Daisy Blanch (1901), Mabel (1903), Elsie May (1906), Ethel Elizabeth (1907) and twins, Alice and Rose (1910), but there were two sons, Henry Edwin (1892) and Frederick George (1893).

In 1911 his family moved from Brimpton and into Newbury, where they lived for a while at 13 Jack Street before moving on to 52 St George’s Avenue (a post-war development of ‘homes fit for heroes’).

Frederick followed his father to work in the paper mills, moving out of the crowded family home to lodge with his mother’s sister Amy Hazell and her family in Thatcham Newtown. However, in 1911, he followed his brother Henry’s example and enlisted with the Royal Berkshire Regiment on 8 August. The following year, having completed his basic training, Frederick was posted to the 2nd Battalion, of the Royal Berks, which was stationed in India.

!The regimental badge of the Berkshire Regiment, as used on CWGC headstones.

When war was declared in August 1914 the 2nd Battalion, was immediately recalled to England, landing at Liverpool on 3 October. The Battalion, joined the newly formed 25th Brigade in the 8th Division, which was made up of units recalled from all corners of the Empire. A month later the Division crossed to France, Frederick landed on 6 November. A week later, on 14 November the Division took over a section of trenches at Fauquissart, their first experience of the front line.

Although there was no great offensive underway there were casualties, including Frederick, who was wounded on 22 December. The battalion’s war diary entry for that date is short: In billets at Levantie. 5 men to hospital. Although the men were in billets (relatively safe quarters behind the lines) there were plenty of opportunities for casualties. Working parties would often be sent forward to work in the support trenches, well within range of German artillery. Even training could be very hazardous – especially bomb (grenade) training.

After a few months in hospital and convalescence he returned to France, this time to the 1st Battalion, Royal Berks rather than the 2nd. It is not known exactly when he returned to action, but it is possible that he was sent as a draft of reinforcements following the 1st Battalion’s heavy losses during the Battle of Loos – which would explain his change of battalion.

On 1 July 1916 the Allies launched the first of a series of offensives known to history as the Battle of the Somme. Frederick’s old Battalion, went over the top on the first day and suffered horrendous casualties, but the 1st Battalion, was not called into action until 27 July when they were sent in to recapture a section of Delville Wood that had been fought over since 15 July. The Battalion, achieved its objective but took heavy losses – 8 officers and 256 other ranks killed, wounded or missing. Frederick was one of the 37 other ranks listed as missing. His body was found a couple of months later near a support trench – which might, of course, have been the front line on 27 July.

His family received the news that he had been found in a convoluted way – the Chaplain responsible for his burial, not knowing Frederick’s next-of-kin details, wrote to the Congregational Minister in Newbury with the news to be passed on to the family:

Newbury Weekly News, 14 September 1916 – Local War Notes

Mr and Mrs H Breach of 13, Victoria-Street, Victoria Park have received the sad news of the loss of their second son, Pte Fred Breach, of the Royal Berks Regiment, who was killed on July 27th, 1916. The information was contained in a letter dated September 1st, sent by the Rev W Telfer, Church of England Chaplain, by the Rev JW Harford, Congregational Minister, in which the writer says:– “I write to you to tell you of the burial of 9573 Pte F Breach, 1st Royal Berks Regt, whom I gathered to be a member of your congregation. I found his body lying in the vicinity of our support trench. Owing to exposure to the weather it was impossible to recover any of his personal effects, but there were four testaments and portions in his tunic pocket, one containing the Diocesan Form signed, and another was the one given to him by the church.” The Chaplain concluded his letter with a request to the Rev Harford to hand out the information, as he could find no address. Pte Breach was in India when the war broke out, and was sent to the Front, being wounded on December 22nd of that year. After several months in hospital, he rejoined his regiment, and had been on leave, returning on June 9th last. This is the second bereavement sustained by Mr and Mrs Breach, their eldest son, Pte H Breach, of the 1st Royal Berks, having been killed in action on March 1st, 1916.
Frederick’s Thatcham connection was not forgotten:

Newbury Weekly News, 28 September 1916 – Echoes from Thatcham

Pte F Breach, son of Mr and Mrs Breach, of Newbury, whose death in action was recorded in this paper the other week, was better known in this village than at Newbury. He was a Thatcham lad, and made this his home. It is his local friends who greatly mourn his death. He spent a lengthy time here recuperating from his former wounds. We will remember his cheerfulness and joviality. He brimmed over with gay spirits and humour.

As can be seen from the newspapers Frederick was buried in 1916, but he has no known burial place. Presumably his burial plot was destroyed in subsequent fighting and bombardment. He is now remembered on Pier 11 and Face D of the massive Thiepval Memorial to the Missing of the Somme.

!Frederick's name on Newbury War Memorial - immediately below that of his brother Henry.

Locally Frederick is remembered on tablet 10 of the Newbury Town War Memorial, the memorial board and roll of honour in St Nicolas Church, Newbury, the Thatcham War Memorial and the memorial board in St Mary’s Church, Thatcham. For some unknown reason he is recorded on the Thatcham memorials as T G Breach. Perhaps he was known by a nickname of Tom or some such, but it could easily be that a handwritten F was mistaken for a T.
His elder brother, Henry also served in the 1st Battalion, Royal Berks and died a few months earlier. For some reason Henry's name was omitted from the memorial board in Thatcham church, but appears on all the other memorials commemorating Frederick.

Their mother Ada must have been shattered by the loss of both of her sons but more bad news was to follow; her cousin Harry Denness (son of her uncle, Edmund Denness) died in December 1917, also serving with the 1st Battalion, Royal Berks; and her nephew Godfrey Denness (son of her brother Thomas) died in August 1917 while serving with the 15th Battalion, Hampshire Regiment. Both are remembered on the same Thatcham memorials as Frederick.

A July edition of the Newbury Weekly News from 1918 writes:

“Six sons of Mr T Diggens (Sexton) and Mrs Diggens, have served in the Army during the war. One (Dick) made the supreme sacrifice nearly two years ago, and the other five are still serving. It is a remarkable record, and the parents and sons deserve congratulation upon the fact. Six sons in the Army we believe establishes the highest number from one family from this parish. It has other unique features; they have all been bell-ringers, and they have all been butchers - a combination of B's. They were cradled in the atmosphere of the Parish Church and the belfry, thus bell-ringing came to them as second nature. But that each in turn should take a hand at butchering, appears even more remarkable. Also, each worked for the late Mr J Warren, formerly butcher in the village. The sons and Regiments are: - Corporal Ted Diggens, ASC; Pte. Charlie Diggens, Wilts, who has recently been wounded, but is making fair progress now; Sergt. Will Diggens, Hants, who has seen length and strenuous service in France; Pte Dick Diggens, Hants, who, as mentioned above, has been killed in action; Pte. Bob Diggens ASC, and Pte Sam Diggens, Hants.”
Private Anthony George Dodd

Anthony was the youngest person to die, identified so far. Anthony was born in 1898 in Thatcham. He had a rough start to life with his mother, Margaret, passing away in 1900. The 1901 census have Anthony and his sister, Martha, living with George and Mary Cook in Northfield Road where they are described as “Nurse Children”. Essentially another family fostered them. Their father worked at a local mill and lived close by. Anthony was in the 35th Battalion, Training Reserve, his service number being TR/8/10086. He died 10th May 1917.

Lance Corporal Eldred by West Berkshire War Memorials
Edward was born in Weedon, Northamptonshire, the son of William Eldred and his wife Sarah, née Izzard.
After leaving school Edward went to work on the railways as a porter. However, he had changed job to follow his father's trade as a painter by the time he was 18. A few months later, on 13 November 1902, he enlisted at Northampton joining the Royal Garrison Artillery. On 8 January 1903 he was posted to the 2nd Company, RGA.

His career in the artillery was very short: he was transferred into the Northamptonshire Regiment on 20 February 1903 and found himself in South Africa on 9 June serving with their 2nd Battalion. After a year in South Africa he returned to England and Borden Camp near Alton in Hampshire.

Edward had signed up for 12 years service, but only three years were to be served with the colours, the remaining nine would be served in the Reserve. In reality he was transferred to the Reserve a few months early on 18 April 1905. He then returned to civilian life.

On 12 March 1906 he married Maud Annie Denness, the daughter of local photographer Soloman Denness and his wife Alice, who lived at Woodside Cottage, Crookham. The couple moved to Weedon and then on to Marlow in Buckinghamshire. They had two children, Philip Edward on 16 June 1909 and Lucy Isabel on 19 December 1911.

When war broke out in August 1914 Edward was only a few months away from the end of his service in the Reserve. This made no difference to the Army and Edward received his mobilisation orders along with the rest of the Reserve. On reporting to his unit he soon found himself in Sydney Hall Hospital, Weymouth. It is not clear what his health problem was, but it was sufficient for him to be discharged as medically unfit for service on 16 September 1914. Correspondence relating to a claim for unpaid allowances shows that, during his convalescence Edward and his family stayed with his in-laws at Crookham.
However, he was not to be denied his chance to serve, the local paper takes up the story:

Newbury Weekly News, 21 January 1915

Lance Corporal E. H. Eldred of Crookham now attached to the 3rd Royal Berks was at the commencement of the war a reservist of the Northants Regiment. After 6 weeks with the Colours he was considered medically unfit and discharged, But Eldred was persevering and after some weeks of recuperating and treatment and having gained in weight and strength he again offered his services. He was accepted, attached to the 3rd Berks and given the rank of Lance Corporal.

Edward joined the 2nd Battalion, Royal Berkshire Regiment in a draft of 30 men on 22 February a few days after landing in France.

The 2nd Battalion, were engaged in the normal day to day activities of life on the front line; short periods of discomfort manning a section of the line intersperses with much longer periods of training and fatigues. However, a major Allied offensive was being planned. The 2nd Berks were tasked with carrying out a diversionary attack to the north of the main targets, near the village of Bois Grenier, on 25 September 1915. This action formed part of the Battle of Loos.

The Battalion's losses were very heavy, almost 200 killed, wounded or missing. It was over a month before word reached Maud Eldred of her husband's death:

Newbury Weekly News, 4 November 1915

The Crookham part of our Parish has indeed been rather badly hit by the war recently, news has been received that we think unofficially L/Cpl. E.H. Eldred 2nd Berks has been KIA. Eldred married a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Denness of Crookham at the outbreak of war they were staying at Crookham, as he was a reservist of the N/Hants Regiment (with which he was engaged in the South African war). He returned to his unit unfortunately he soon became unwell and was eventually invalided out. Later he became better in health and with successful persistence re-enlisted in the 3rd R/Berks being a fully trained man he was soon sent with a draft to reinforce the 2nd Batt. It is now believed that he has fallen and friends will sympathize with his wife and two children and with his Crookham connections.

Edward Eldred's grave in the White City Cemetery.

It seems that the official notification may have arrived soon after:

Newbury Weekly News, 15 November 1915, p8

Among the wounded we may mention two other well known Crookhamites William Durbridge and Harry Greenough for whom we fervently wish a recovery. Last but not least much sympathy is felt for Mrs. S. Denness of Woodside for the loss of her son in law E. H. Eldred who first enlisted in a Northampton Regiment and after being invalided home for some time eventually joined the Royal Berks. He too was killed in action on September the 25th in the great drive when the Allies were on the offensive. He leaves a widow and two children to mourn the loss of the breadwinner. We hope the spirit of patriotism will sustain them in their sorrow and grief.
Edward was buried in the White City Cemetery half a mile south of the village of Bois Grenier, in plot B.3.

Edward Eldred is commemorated on the Thatcham war memorial and on the roll of honour in St Mary's church, Thatcham.

Thanks to Carol & Valerie Pike for their contribution to this story.

Alfred's name on Thatcham War Memorial - above his brother Ernest.

Alfred was born in Crookham, Berkshire on 9 April 1892 the son of James Charles Fry and his wife Ellen Rose née Dowling. James was a baker serving the scattered community to the south of Crookham and Greenham Commons. Crookham is a hamlet of the much larger village of Thatcham (now a town of 30,000+ inhabitants), but the Fry’s lived in Head’s Hill, an area far from the main settlement and some distance from the cluster of housing normally thought of as Crookham. In reality he probably got as much trade from the villages of Newtown and Headley; close by but over the border in Hampshire.

Alfred was the youngest of four children, all brothers; the others were Ernest James (born 1885), Albert John (1886), and Jesse Charles (1889).

The bakery evidently did a decent trade because both Ernest and Albert joined their father in the business rather than seek employment elsewhere. By 1911 Arthur had left home to work, as a baker, for Henry Pearce in Headley – where he was probably serving an apprenticeship as he too had joined the family business by 1916. The remaining brother, Jesse, was the only one to rebel against embroilment in the family trade; he became a ‘cycle agent’, which covers a wide range of activities, but Jesse was more the local cycle repair man than the business entrepreneur selling a wide range of the latest bicycles.
After war was declared in August 1914 many young men eagerly volunteered, but not Alfred. By this time his father was 64 and the three brothers, Ernest, Albert and Arthur, were heavily involved in the running of the family business; each had a lot more to lose than an employee would. However, the Government introduced conscription in January 1916 and Alfred was duly called up for service.

Ernest, John and Alfred were all called up – and foolishly ignored their papers, believing they were automatically exempt because they were working in a reserved occupation. When a second set of papers arrived they should have realised things were not that simple – but they ignored them again. The next call was from the police, who came to arrest them for not appearing to be attested (the first step in enlistment – form signing and a medical).

They appeared before a magistrate in Newbury, who adjourned the case so they could appeal against their conscription at the local Tribunal. The brothers’ case appeared before the Newbury Rural Tribunal on 2 May 1916:

Reading Mercury, 6 May 1916 – Newbury Rural Tribunal

Chief interest in the proceedings centred around the appeal sent in on behalf of three brother bakers – Ernest James Fry (31), Albert James [sic] Fry (28), and Alfred Arthur Fry (23) – the sons of Mr J C Fry, baker, of Crookham, near Newbury. It will be remembered that the three men were recently arrested by the police for failing to report themselves to the military authorities pursuant to two notices which were sent them, and which they admitted receiving. When before the court, Mr Lucas, solicitor, appeared on their behalf, and state that being under the impression they were engaged in a certified occupation as bakers, they had not attested or made any appeal. On his application the matter was adjourned for a fortnight to enable an appeal to be made to the Tribunal, so that the cases might be heard on their merits. This course was assented to by the magistrate who heard the case, a belated protest by Lieutenant Bidmead, who represented the military on that occasion, not being entertained. Mr Lucas appeared before the Tribunal on Tuesday in support of the appeal, which was made by the father. Mr Lucas stated that Mr Fry did a baking business of twelve sacks per week, and there was no other baker within 3½ miles The sons’ time was entirely given up to baking and the delivery for which two horses and carts and a bicycle were daily employed.

Major Bertram, for the military, here intimated that he objected to the appeals being heard at all on the grounds of time.

Mr Lucas having read the portion of the Military Service Act bearing on the point, while agree that an appeal should have been made, urged that the impression held by Mr Fry that baking was a reserved employment was sufficient reason for asking that the appeals should now be heard on their merits.

Mr Fry was called and said he had four sons, one of whom was in the Army. In reference to the other three, he was under the impression that he need not appeal, and therefore had not done so.

Examined by Major Bartram, he said he had always thought this, but could not say why, when he did make the appeal he did not do so on these grounds, but on others. He knew his sons had received papers calling them to the Colours, but neither he nor they had taken any steps to find out if these notices were in order, because, being bakers, they did not think it necessary. He read the newspapers when he had time, and noticed the reports of Tribunals.
Major Bertram applied that the cases should not be heard on their merits. If these men had taken the trouble to consult the authorities such proceedings might not have been taken. But they had ignored both the first and second notice sent them to join the Colours. One would have thought they would have done something to find out about the matter, instead of which they let it all slide, and left it until they were arrested by the police.

Mr Lucas, replying, said it was not likely that Mr Fry would read the proceedings of Tribunals or that his sons would learn the intricacies of these matters. He contended that a reasonable ground had been established for allowing the appeals to be heard on their merits, and reminded the Tribunal that there was a need for bread for women and children as well as of men for the Army.

In reply to the chairman, Mr Fry said he was informed by a magistrate that baking was a certified occupation.

The clerk pointed out that in neither of the appeals was this specific ground taken, to which Mr Lucas replied that it was set out fully in the applications.

The Tribunal deliberated in private, and on their return the chairman said they had carefully considered the matter and declined to hear the appeals.

Mr Lucas: To-morrow there will be a considerable district without bread.

There is no reason to believe that all three would have been granted exemption had they appealed at the appropriate time – it is hard to believe that a tribunal would consider that a small rural bakery had genuine need for three bakers. Perhaps one, probably Ernest as the eldest, would have been reprieved. Certainly the desperate state of the bakery business seems to have been exaggerated; their father was still running it a decade later.

The regimental badge of the Worcestershire Regiment, on a recently cut CWGC headstone.

The day after the Tribunal Alfred found himself in Reading where he was given a medical, passed fit for general service and appointed to the 3/7th Battalion, Worcestershire Regiment.

The 3/7th was a training battalion, where Alfred would be given the basic training needed to turn a civilian into a soldier. Once they reached a certain level of competence trainees were posted to one of the regiment’s battalions in the field. In Alfred’s case this was the 1/7th (Territorial) Battalion; he landed in France on 14 August 1916 (after a remarkably short period of training) en route to the Battalion, which he joined on 16 September. Most of the intervening month was probably spent at an Infantry Base Depot, where he would have received more training.

Two months later, on 15 November, Alfred was wounded with what is given in his paperwork as GSW (shrap) – gunshot wound (shrapnel). Shrapnel shells contained numerous ‘bullets’ – balls of lead or steel – that were sprayed around when the shell burst. So, although not strictly a gunshot wound the damage caused was very similar to that of a bullet fired from a rifle. Alfred received wounds to his right arm and right leg. He was treated at 45 CCS (casualty clearing station) and 3 Stat H (stationary hospital – in Rouen) and then, on 22 November, evacuated to England on the SS Aberdonian. The wound to his leg (thigh) proved to be fatal, it became infected and Albert died in Bradford War Hospital of septicaemia on 27 November 1916.
Information about his funeral was printed in the war news column:

Newbury Weekly News, 7 December 1916 – Local War Notes

The late Pte Alfred Fry, the youngest son of Mr and Mrs Fry, of Crookham, who died of wounds at War Hospital, Bradford, Yorkshire, was buried at Thatcham Cemetery with military honours. The mourners were father, mother, and brother, Miss Newman, Mrs Simpson, Miss Heal, Miss Head, Miss Gostling. Wreaths were sent by Father, Mother and Brothers, in ever loving memory; Dorothy; Fanny and Bill; Anna Alice and Mary; Mr and Mrs Gostling and Nellie; Mr and Mrs Hazel and family; Mr and Mrs Bew and family; Miss Clarke; Mr J Brown and Miss Collins, of Headley; Friends of Headley; Friends of Bishops Green; Mr and Mrs Miller. Flowers: Mrs Leng, Mrs Parkyns.

And a month after his death a notice appeared in the Family Announcements column:

Newbury Weekly News, 28 December 1916 – Died of Wounds

In loving memory of Pte A Fry, No 5141, A Company, Worcestershire Regt, who died of wounds November 27th, 1916, aged 23 years.
The call was short, the shock severe,
To part with one we loved so dear;
Our hope’s in Heaven that we may meet,
And then our joy will be complete.

Alfred was buried on 1 December 1916 in grave 1002 at Thatcham Cemetery. He is remembered on the Thatcham War Memorial and on the memorial board in St Mary’s Church, Thatcham.
The anniversary of his death was publically remembered by his family:

Newbury Weekly News, 6 December 1917 – In Memoriam

In ever loving memory of Pte Alfred Fry, late of the 1/7th Worcestershire Regt, who died of wounds received in action at Delville Wood, France.

It is just twelve months ago

That he was called above;

From one that he has always loved,

In future we shall meet above.

From his loving Father, Mother and Brothers

Private Fry by West Berkshire War Memorials

Ernest was born in Crookham, Berkshire in 1885 the son of James Charles Fry and his wife Ellen Rose née Dowling. James was a baker serving the scattered community to the south of Crookham and Greenham Commons. Crookham is a hamlet of the much larger village of Thatcham (now a town of 30,000+ inhabitants), but the Fry’s lived in an area far from the main settlement and some distance from the cluster of housing normally thought of as Crookham. In reality he probably got more trade from the village of Newtown close by but over the border in Hampshire.

Ernest's name on Thatcham War Memorial - below his brother Alfred.

Ernest was one of only four children, a relatively small family by the standards of the time. His siblings, all brothers, were Albert John (born 1886), Jesse Charles (1889), and Alfred Arthur (1892).

The bakery evidently did a decent trade because both Ernest and Albert joined their father in the business rather than seek employment elsewhere. By 1911 Arthur had left home to work, as a baker, for Henry Pearce in Headley – where he may well have been serving an apprenticeship as he too had joined the family business by 1916. The remaining brother, Jesse, was the only one to rebel against embroilment in the family trade; he became a ‘cycle agent’, which covers a wide range of activities, but Jesse was perhaps more likely to be the local cycle repair man than a business entrepreneur selling a wide range of the latest bicycles.

After war was declared in August 1914 many young men eagerly volunteered, but not Ernest. By this time his father was 64 and, as the eldest son, Ernest would have taken on much of the running of the family business; he had a lot more to lose than an employee would. However, the Government introduced conscription in January 1916 and Ernest was duly called up for service.

Ernest, John and Alfred were all called up – and foolishly ignored their papers, believing they were automatically exempt because they were working in a reserved occupation. When a second set of papers arrived they should have realised things were not that simple – but they ignored them again. The next call was from the police, who came to arrest them for not appearing to be enlisted.

They appeared before a magistrate in Newbury:

Reading Mercury, 22 April 1916 – County Police Court

Wednesday, April 19th – Before R Beynon Esq.

Three Baker Brothers and Military Service

Arthur Alfred Fry, John Albert Fry, and Ernest James Fry, brothers, single men, living at Crookham, and engaged with their father in a baking business, were charged with failing to appear at the time and place required on the 10th and 11th April.

P S Gallop, stationed at Thatcham, stated that he asked the men the reason they had not attended. Arthur Fry replied, “Because I had other work to do”; John Albert said, “Conscientious objection through pressure of business”; and Ernest answered, “Conscientious objection through business.”

In reply to Mr Lucas, who appeared for the brothers witness said that they told him they were bakers, and although they did not say this was a reserved occupation he understood that this was what they meant.
Mr Lucas applied for an adjournment for a fortnight. These men were engaged with their father (who was quite unable to do anything himself) in a bakery business at Crookham, doing twelve sacks per week, and serving a wide area, and no one else was working in the business, which would have to go if they were taken away. The reason for asking for an adjournment was that their cases might come before the tribunal in the usual way. If the tribunal decided that they must go they must submit, but it might be possible in the interval for the father to make some arrangement for carrying on the business.

The Magistrate: The case is adjourned for a fortnight.

Lieutenant Bidmead (from the Newbury Recruiting Office): Am I too late to object to this on behalf of the military authorities?

The Magistrate: The decision has been given.

On the application of Mr Lucas the men were admitted to bail in their own recognizance of £5 each.

The brothers’ case appeared before the Newbury Rural Tribunal on 2 May 1916. Their father applied for their exemption from conscription on the grounds that they were working in a reserved occupation. However, the military authorities objected on the grounds that they were too late to appeal. As they had each received two separate notices of their call up and simply ignored them (until the police came to arrest them for non-appearance) one can see the military’s point.

Sadly for the Frys the tribunal ruled in favour of the military objection – they had failed to appeal within the time allotted and hence the appeal would not be heard. So, despite the possibility of there being grounds for their exemption from service they would have to go into the army. The following day all three became soldiers.

As their council said on hearing the tribunal’s ruling “Tomorrow there will be a considerable district without bread”. For a newspaper report of the Tribunal hearing see here.

There is no reason to believe that all three would have been granted exemption had they appealed at the appropriate time – it is hard to believe that a tribunal would consider that a small rural bakery had genuine need for three bakers. Perhaps one, probably Ernest as the eldest, would have been reprieved. Certainly the desperate state of the bakery business seems to have been exaggerated; their father was still running it a decade later.

Ernest’s fitness was assessed as ‘B1’ - fit for Labour service, not for combat duty. He was mobilised as 22814 in the Royal Berks and then posted to the 11th Works Company which was attached to the 3rd Hants at Fort Comer as part of the defence of Portsmouth (section III). On the 9th May 1916 the 10th (Labour) Battalion, Royal Berkshire Regiment was formed from various works units of the Berks and Wilts. Ernest was posted to the new Battalion, on 20 May, almost certainly along with the rest of his Company.

On the 14th June section III of the Portsmouth Defences was ordered to France along with the rest of the 10th Battalion. They left Portsmouth on 17th June for Southampton and half embarked on the Transport ship Astralind on the 18th with the rest on the Caesarea on the 19th. On arrival at Le Havre they went to Sauvie camp and on the 20th entrained for Rouen to be based at 3 Labour Camp at Quevilly. Here they worked at the Docks and Ordnance depot.

The Labour Corps was formed December 1916 and absorbed the 10th Battalion, which was formally transferred to the Labour Corps 9th May 1917 as 158 and 159 Labour Companies. Ernest joined 159 Company with the service number 94964.

He was home for Christmas 1917, on leave or through sickness, and took the opportunity to marry his sweetheart, Ellen Gostling, on Christmas Day.

The regimental badge of the Labour Corps. (wikipedia)

In March 1918, back in France, he had a bout of dysentery that required medical attention. Subsequently he suffered two further bouts of diarrhoea eventually being invalided home and admitted for treatment at Newcastle under Lyme War Hospital, Staffordshire on 19 December 1918.

He was discharged from hospital on 13 January, fit for duty but no longer required by the Army. He was, therefore, recommended for ‘transfer to Class Z’. This was the normal form of discharge for a fit soldier – he would remain a member of the reserve in case the peace process failed and hostilities resumed. Meanwhile Ernest was able to go home and resume his civilian life while the discharge paperwork was processed through the system.

However, all was not well, Ernest died at home on 1 February 1919, three weeks after his discharge from hospital.
FRY – February 1st, at Crookham, Pte E Fry, Labour Corps, dearly beloved husband of Ellen Fry, Crookham, eldest son of Mr and Mrs J C Fry.

Oh, how much we miss thee, loved one,
No tongue on earth can tell.
But God thought best to take him home,
With Him in Heaven to dwell.

His military record includes a form covering any possible award from any disability caused by his service. Owing to inherent delays in the paperwork (the Army was processing hundreds of thousands of discharges as fast as it could cope with them) this form was finally completed on 13 February and clearly notes that there would be no award since Ernest had no disability – obviously the authorities were still wholly unaware that he had died 12 days earlier.

Ernest was buried on 6 February 1919 in grave VI.799 at Thatcham Cemetery. His death certificate gives the cause of death as an epileptic convulsion and asphyxia. This does not appear to be linked to dysentery or diarrhoea, nevertheless he was still a serving soldier (just) and his name joined his brother Alfred's on Thatcham's war memorials. He is remembered on the Thatcham War Memorial and on the memorial board in St Mary’s Church, Thatcham.

His name is also among those on the memorial in Newbury Baptist Church, which records the deaths of Baptists from the wider religious community served by the Newbury church and its satellite chapels. As his brother Alfred’s name is not on this memorial it seems that the Frys were not a Baptist family; it was probably Ernest’s wife, Ellen, who was the Baptist, though Ernest may well have chosen this path of worship himself.
Ernest’s death while still a serving soldier means that he should be remembered on the national Debt of Honour Roll maintained by the Commonwealth War Graves Commission, which should also be monitoring and caring for his grave. However, his was one of many cases that slipped through the net. An application will be made to the Commission to rectify this and to add his name to the honour roll and his grave to those under the Commission’s care.

Family
Ernest’s mother also died in 1919, but his father continued to run the Crookham Bakery until his death in 1930.

All four Fry brothers served during the war – following his abrupt conscription Alfred served with the 1/7th (Territorial) Battalion, Worcestershire Regiment. He was wounded in November 1917 and died later that month.

Albert was the third brother conscripted, but no record of his service has been found. This is not unusual, the majority of service records were destroyed in a fire during WW2. The alternative sources of information tend to require more information in order to work out which Albert John Fry they might apply to.

Numerous Albert J Frys were awarded medals (the most complete record source for WW1 army service), but the records do not contain any useful identification information (such as date of birth, next of kin, address). So John’s service remains a mystery – he could even have failed the medical on attestation and returned to the bakery within a few days of the Tribunal in May 1916. He certainly did return at some point - he died in Crookham in 1942.
The fourth brother, Jesse, served voluntarily, enlisting on 15 November 1915 into the King’s Royal Rifle Corps (R16693). After training he was posted to the regiment’s 12th Battalion, in Belgium.

Newbury Weekly News, 3 August 1916 – Local War Notes

Private Jesse Fry, third son of Mr and Mrs Fry, of Crookham, has been seriously wounded during the great advance in France by shrapnel. He is being treated in hospital at Woolwich, and by the latest report is progressing favourably. Two other brothers, Ernest and Alfred, are also seeing service in France.

It should be noted that this news item is not entirely correct – Jesse’s Battalion, was in the Ypres area a good distance away from the ‘great advance’ on the Somme and Alfred was still training in the UK at this time. It is impossible to be sure when or where Jesse received his wounds, newspaper reports such as this were usually printed weeks after the event, sometimes months. The most likely occasions were in early June, when the Battalion, was very active in the Battle of Mount Sorrel (a German attack on Canadian-held positions east of Ypres) and in early July when the Battalion, suffered a number of casualties from enemy shelling while manning the line at Potijze.

Further reports followed:

Newbury Weekly News, 3 August 1916 – Local War Notes

Rifleman Jesse Fry, of Crookham, writes to say that he is in Brook Hospital, Woolwich, satisfactorily recovering from his wound.

Newbury Weekly News, 3 August 1916 – Local War Notes

Rifleman J Fry, of Crookham Common, who was badly wounded in June of last year, is still in hospital in Croydon. He has been in four different hospitals since September, but is progressing fairly well.
While Jesse recovered he was no longer fit for army service and was discharged on 4 September 1917. He returned home and picked up his old life, returning to his role as the local cycle mechanic. In 1918 he married Hilda Parker and the couple settled at Head’s Hill, where Jesse died on 7 January 1943.

The Reading Observer, 27 November 1915, notes Sergeant W Pearce, 14538 of the 8th Battalion, Royal berks Regiment as missing. The Reading Mercury, 15 July 1916, reported Drummer W Pearce, 14538 (Crookham, Hants) as killed. Presumably this was an error and should have been Berkshire.
Private Pearce by West Berkshire War Memorials

William Pearce was born in late 1892, the eldest child of William and Emily. At the time of the 1901 and 1911 censuses the family are living at Thornford, a farmstead on the Hampshire border, south of Greenham Common where William was employed as a farm worker. By 1911 William was working, along with two younger brothers, George and Arthur as 'waggoners on farm'. Presumably they had found employment on Thornford Farm though William became a groom at Chamberhouse Farm, on the north side of Greenham Common, before he signed up with the Royal Berks during the early days of the war.

He was assigned to the 8th Battalion, a new unit, one of several formed from the wave of volunteers who rushed to enlist in the patriotic fervour at the start of the war.

By October 1915 the Battalion, was in France and had already seen heavy action the previous month at the start of the Battle of Loos, the so-called 'big push'. On the 25 September the Battalion, suffered appalling loses (17 officers and 500 other ranks) during the opening attack of the Battle, despite these losses the Battalion, was back in the line on the 12 October, with fresh troops drafted from the 9th Battalion, to help make up the numbers.

The Battalion, war diary tells the story:

Oct 12 1915
The Battalion, assumed its battle position at 11:30pm on the night of the 12/13th instant, with the Black Watch Regiment on its left and the London Scottish on its right flank. The Battalion, occupied a frontage of two hundred yards, with two companies in the front line and two companies in support, its objective being the German trench on the east side of the main road not more than two hundred yards from our own trench.

Oct 13 1915

Precisely at 1:00pm the Chlorine gas discharge began and was continued at intervals until 1:50pm. During this time smoke bombs were thrown out by our men from the front line trench. The wind seemed very favourable and carried the gas and smoke towards the enemy's trench. 1:50pm. The gas discharge ceased, the artillery lifted and the Battalion, wire-cutters accompanied by men carrying smoke bombs went forward under cover of the smoke. During the whole time of the smoke discharge hostile machine gun fire from our right flank could be heard. 2:00pm. The remainder of the two companies in the front line went over. From reports I have since received it appears than only about six of these men reached the Estimate across the road owing to heavy machine-gun fire from the right flank which seemed to come from the direction of the chalk pits. These men remained at the Estimate until dark and then crawled back. 2:10PM. At 2:10PM a report reached me that our first lines had attained the road but were being enfiladed; I then ordered two platoons of the supporting companies to go over. As these men crossed our first line, the Machine Gun Officer, with his team, joined them. This Officer reports that by this time the smoke was beginning to thin and that his team only got about 75 yards beyond our parapet when they came under machine-gun fire and were cut down. From inquiries I have made from NCOs it appears that about fifteen men of this line reached the road but did not cross it. They report that there was little rifle fire from the German trench. Hand grenades were thrown at them from the enemy's trench, but these fell short by about ten yards. 2:20PM. The remainder of the Battalion, went over, but were no more successful that the others in reaching their objective. During the night those men who had escaped crawled back to our front-line trench. I Attribute the failure of the attack to the inability of our artillery to silence the German machine-guns, and to the complete absence of support.

Newbury Weekly News, 6 June 1916

Mr and Mrs W Pearce, of Crookham, have been officially informed that their son William, who has been missing since October 13th, 1915, must be considered as killed in action on that date. He was a private in the 8th Batt Royal Berks Regiment, and was 23 years of age. Before joining the Army he was groom at Chamberhouse Farm.

William's body was never identified, he is commemorated on Panel 95 on the walls of the Loos Memorial at Dud Corner just outside the small town of Loos.

The 1891 census has surname as Stephens but later census has Stevens. He enlisted in 1905 where his previous occupation is listed as Wood Turner.

Petty Officer William Henry Stevens was the first person from Thatcham to die during the war that has been identified so far. He was born 19 October 1887 in Thatcham. Initially the family lived in Station Road but later moved to Green Lane. His parents were William and Emily. William had eight brothers and sisters who are Emily, Ernest, Thomas, Edwin, Herbert, Harold and Alice. There is a record of another sibling but their name is unknown.
William joined up with the Navy and last served on the HMS Hogue. The ship was part of the Southern Force in the North Sea on 22 September 1914 when a German U-boat, U-9, on patrol surfaced and fired a torpedo. The U-boat dived again, and the torpedo hit one of the ships. The U-boat rose again and fired more torpedoes this time hitting HMS Hogue. A number of ships were hit causing about 1,450 deaths.

Alexander’s grandfather, Charles Turner, married Ella Thornton in 1886 and she died a year later due to complications after giving birth. This first son, Charles, followed his father into military service and was awarded the MC. Charles (senior) remarried, in 1892, Jane Elizabeth Buller and they had five children Jane (aka Janey, Milly), Alexander, Victor, Cecil and Mark.
Cecil went into the Royal Navy whilst Victor went on to be awarded a VC in the Second World War. Mark served in the Royal Horse Artillery and was awarded both the DSO and MC.

Alexander was awarded, posthumously, the VC for his actions at the Battle of Loos in 1915. A soldier, Corporal W Hawkins, wrote a letter about the action. Hawkins writes:

“Our lads were very weary and tired after being twenty-four days in trenches, but still, there was work to do and it fell to our dear old regiment to do it, and they fought like heroes everyone. We were fired on from all sides, and the German ‘bombers’ tried to cut us off, but Lieutenant Turner and Private Sparrow went forward and bombed them back. Lieutenant Turner got right up to the German parapet, stood up and hurled bombs at them as fast as ever he could. A pluckier deed I never saw. I am sorry to say that he was wounded and he has since died. I am proud to have served under such an officer, and I know Thatcham will be proud of him too. This deed was done in daylight and seen by the majority of the regiment. His friends will have the consolation of knowing that he met his death courageously carrying out dangerous duty.”

Corporal Hawkins is said to be from Thatcham and is possibly Walter Hawkins, born in Cold Ash and was living in Thatcham in 1891 and 1901. Another member of the regiment, Private Joseph Tedder, also wrote a letter of the action which appeared in several newspapers:

“We were making a night attack, and after a few hours’ hard fighting we were very hard pressed, for we were attacking all uphill, and the enemy had the advantage over our brave fellows, for they were well supplied with bombs. When we got part of the way up the hill they simply showered bombs down upon us, so that we had to retire a little way and reorganise. Then the daylight came, and we had to give up the attempt, or we should have been wiped out. But the Huns had not finished – they bombed us from a short communication trench that ran near ours. Then our time came; I was nearly mad at seeing our chaps being bowled over and at not being able to get at the Germans. One of our officers named Turner called for volunteers to go and bomb them from the trench, and two of us went with him and succeeded, after throwing several boxes of bombs, and also getting some dozens thrown at us and having volleys fired at us from the hill. Then the officer was hit three times, and died next day from his wounds. I was slightly grazed on the shoulder, and that finished me for the time. Then we were relieved, after having had a very trying time. The officer is recommended for the V.C.”

It was estimated by Colonel Carter who led the rear-guard that the action saved 200 to 300 lives. Private Sparrow is most likely to be Private William Sparrow, service number 8777. William was from Salford, wounded at the Somme, he died 3rd August 1916.

Private Westall by West Berkshire War Memorials

Frank was born in Shaw in 1886 the fourth son, eighth and youngest child of James Westall and his wife Edith (née Head). James was a farm worker, originally from Boxford, who seems to have worked on the Shaw Estate. The estate spanned the parish boundaries between Newbury, Shaw and Cold Ash (formerly part of Thatcham) and the family can be found in various cottages in census returns.

At the time of the 1901 census Frank was a 14-year-old schoolboy, about to leave full-time schooling for the adult world of work. By 1911 he was working as a general labourer and living with his parents at 32 Shaw Crescent, Newbury. Between the two censuses it would appear that Frank signed up with the Royal Berkshire Regiment; judging by his service number this was probably in 1903 (aged 17). He would have signed up for a standard 7/5 term – seven years with the regiment as a regular soldier followed by five years in the reserves. By 1911 he would have been back in civvies, probably thinking that his uniform would only be needed for an occasional training session, perhaps a parade or two; but that all changed in August 1914 when war was declared on Germany. Reservists were immediately mobilised, many arriving with their regiments in the opening days of the war. Frank reported for duty at Brock Barracks in Reading and was with the 1st Battalion, of the Royal Berks when they crossed to France on 13 August 1914.

Frank Westall's grave in France

The Battalion, saw action from the first engagement at Mons, took part in the long retreat back to the Marne, turned and fought the Germans to a standstill, then pushed them back into Belgium where both armies dug in and began the years of trench warfare.
In early 1915 Frank’s father, James, died aged 73. Frank was away in the trenches and was unable to attend the funeral, but he did get home on leave later in the year, returning to his unit on 22 September.

A few days later, on 25 September 1915 the British launched an offensive known to history as the Battle of Loos. The battlefield was a coal mining area around the small town of Loos-en-Gohelle, just south of the Belgian border. An early target was a mine known as Fosse 8; German positions on a large slag heap overlooked the British troops advancing towards them and they were able to repel several attacks. On 28 September the 1st Royal Berks were tasked with another attempt on Fosse 8. Against determined opposition the Battalion, fought its way as far as the slag heap, some men getting half way up it. During the action Lt Alexander Buller Turner from Thatcham won the regiment’s first VC of the war; his, and many other acts of individual heroism were in vain. Losses were heavy; a total of 13 officers and 275 other ranks were killed, wounded or missing.

Frank was among the 143 men missing, their fate unknown. His family were informed:

Newbury Weekly News, 11 November 1915 - Local War Notes

_Pte F Westall, 1st Royal Berks, youngest son of Mrs Westall, of 32, Shaw Crescent, has been reported missing since September 28. A letter from him of that date has been received by his sister, evidently hurriedly written. A nephew in the same regiment, but in another company, writes that his uncle was killed, but of this there is no confirmatory evidence. His friends would be glad to hear of any information with regard to him. Mrs Westall has two sons and two grandsons fighting in France._

By this time everyone knew that ‘missing’ all too often meant dead, but missing men did turn up as prisoners in German hands. Relatives would eagerly read every new list of prisoners of war in the hope of finding the name of their loved one. Some were lucky, many were not. Frank’s family did hear, eventually, that he was taken prisoner, but the news was not good:

Newbury Weekly News, 9 March 1916 - Died of Wounds

WESTALL - Died of wounds received in action at Vermelles on September 28th, 1915, whilst a prisoner of war in Germany. Pte Frank Westall, 1st Royal Berks, and youngest dearly loved son of the late James and of Mrs Westall, 32, Shaw-crescent, aged 28 years.

Far away cross the ocean in a distant land he is laid,
We do not know the pain he bore,
We did not see him die;
We only know that he is gone,
And could not say goodbye.

From his loving mother and sister Ida.

More details were printed in the news columns:

Newbury Weekly News, 9 March 1916 - Local War Notes

After nearly six months of anxiety and suspense, official notification has now been received, together with a letter of sympathy from the King, of Pte Frank Westall, 1st Royal Berks, and youngest son of Mrs Westall, 32, Shaw-crescent, who has been missing since the 28th September, 1915 – he has since died of severe wounds received in action of that date, at Vermelles, whilst a prisoner in Germany. Pte Frank Westall was a reservist, and was called up to rejoin his regiment August 6, 1914, and left for France a week later. He was home for a few days leave after 13 months, and was reported missing just six days after he returned to the front. Although prepared for the worst, the sad news is particularly painful to his mother and sister.

Later that year his mother marked the anniversary of his death:

Newbury Weekly News, 28 September 1916 – In Memoriam

In ever loving memory of Private Frank Westall, of the Royal Berkshire Regt, reported missing after the Battle of Vermelles, September 28th, 1915, reported died a prisoner of war in February, 1916.

Far and often our thoughts do wonder
To that grave so far away;
The unknown grave is the bitterest blow,
None but aching hearts can know.
None know how sad the parting was,
Or what the farewell cost;
But God and His bright Angels
Have gained what we have lost.

Never forgotten by his sorrowing Mother and Sister.

Frank’s story was not quite over, in January 1918 a final chapter was recorded in the local paper:

Newbury Weekly News, 10 January 1918 – Local War Notes

News has now been received of the late Pte Frank Westall, 1st Royal Berks, and son of Mrs Westall, of Shaw Crescent, who was first reported missing September 28th, 1915; then later as having died a prisoner of war in Germany between that date and the 5th February 1916. Now a report which has been received by the War Office through the Geneva Red Cross, in which his name appears in the German official list of dead:-
The deceased was a reservist, and re-joined his regiment in August 1914, going first to Reading and Aldershot, and crossed to France a week later. He came home on leave after thirteen months, and had only returned to the front six days. His last letter was received in September, 1915, two days after he was taken prisoner.

Later that year the family remembered Frank on the third anniversary of his death:

Newbury Weekly News, 3 October 1918 – In Memoriam

In ever-loving memory of Pt. Frank Westall 1st Batt. Royal Berks. Reg. died a PoW in Germany October the 3rd 1915 reported missing in September, taken prisoner 6 days after returning to the front from a few days leave.
How sad is the parting so many now know
No grave to watch over our great love to show
But well done dear boy you so nobly gave
Your life for your country to free and to save
Not dead to us we loved him dear
Not lost but gone before
He lives with us in memory still and will for evermore.

From Mother and Sisters Ida (Shaw Crescent) and Charlie (in France)
Frank died on 3 November 1915 and was buried in a German military cemetery at Seolin. After the war there was a large programme of rationalisation of graves during which Frank was moved from Seolin to Cabaret Rouge British Cemetery on the outskirts of the village of Souchez. He lies in grave VIII. J. 12.

Frank's name on Newbury War Memorial (centre)

Locally he is remembered on the Newbury Town War Memorial, as well as village memorials in Shaw and Thatcham, and a memorial board in St Mary’s, Thatcham.

In the first newspaper item above it is noted that Frank’s mother, Edith, had two sons and two grandsons serving their country. It is not easy to state for certain which of the many Westalls who served were her children or grandchildren but two have sufficiently unusual names to identify them. These are Edith’s second youngest son, Albert Jesse (Bertie) Westall (Cpl 2397, Army Veterinary Corps), and Jack Claude Westall (Pte 304724, Tank Corps), the son of her eldest son, Henry. More work on the family tree may turn up several others; the article was written in 1915, before conscription would have scooped up some more of Edith’s grandsons.

The war diary for the battalion reads:

May. HUTS WEST OF YPRES. 4th May. The Bn. were resting in the huts. The following reinforcements arrived on the 3rd May: Other Ranks 240. 7 p.m. Orders were received to march out to the trenches and relieve the 5th Bn. The King’s Own Regt. 8.30 p.m. The Battalion marched out and took over trenches in front of FREZENBERG. The trenches were new trenches and had not been completed. ‘A’ and ‘D’ Coys. were in the first line. ‘B’ and ‘C’ Coys. in support. ‘B’ Coy. acting as support to the 3rd Monmouths. 5th -7th May. Battalion in the trenches. Enemy shelled trenches intermittently. 8th May. 7 a.m. Enemy shelled trenches blowing them in, and rendering them untenable. The enemy advanced and captured the front line trenches; they then advanced against the support dugouts. The O.C. 3rd Monmouths called for one company to support the line and ‘B’ Coy. under Captain Forwood at once moved across the road and occupied some old trenches east of the burial ground in the rear of the Monmouth’s trenches. 10 a.m. Enemy commenced attack in the support dugouts but were held in check when 200 yards from them. The enemy were observed moving in a westerly direction on both flanks of the position. Major Clough assumed command on the death of Colonel Martin. 11.35 a.m. Message received to retire on POTIJZE. ‘B’ Coy. was ordered to retire first followed by the 3 platoons of ‘C’ Coy. on the North of the YPRES - ZONNEBEKE Road. The following officers were present during the engagement. (Here Lt. Col. A. R. S. Martin, is one of the officers listed killed) After the retirement regiments got mixed up. Some of the Bn. retired through the POTIJZE line and some remained in the trenches till the 9th May. 9th May. The remainder of the Battalion were withdrawn from the front line and sent back to the huts. The total casualties during this last tour in the trenches from 4th May till 9th May were:- Officers: Killed 4, Wounded 5, Wounded and Prisoners 2, Wounded and Missing 1, Missing 4. Other Ranks: Killed 36, Wounded 110, Wounded and Missing 31, Missing 721. This last entry gives some indication of the extreme pressure that the 2nd Kings Own had been under: most of the battalion were recorded as casualties. The Official History adds that at 08.30hrs the German infantry rose and assaulted the exposed front on Frezenberg Ridge and the attack was driven off. After another half hour bombardment a second attempt failed in like manner, but by this time practically all the men in the front line trenches had been killed wounded or buried. It was impossible to send reinforcements and a third assault at about 10.00hrs succeeded. The Kings Own on the left, its front line having held out until overwhelmed, and Lt Col ARS Martin killed, now also defended its support trench.

How a town remembered them

In early 2014 Thatcham Town Council established a working party of Councillors and community representatives to explore what activities the Town Council should undertake to commemorate WW1.

The Town Council held a number of events over the following 4 years:

- 6\textsuperscript{th} August 2014  Service to mark the centenary of the start of WW1
- 9\textsuperscript{th}-14\textsuperscript{th} November 2014  Exhibition of historical mapping from the Royal School of Military Survey
- 15\textsuperscript{th} November 2014  Guided tour of the war graves at Thatcham Cemetery
- 25\textsuperscript{th} April 2015  Dawn service to mark the centenary of Anzac Day
- 28\textsuperscript{th} September 2015  Unveiling of the commemorative stones for Thatcham’s three Victoria Cross recipients
- 1\textsuperscript{st} July 2016  Service to mark the centenary of the Battle of the Somme
- 4\textsuperscript{th} November 2017  Guided tour of the war graves at Thatcham Cemetery
- 11\textsuperscript{th} November 2018  WW1 Armistice Centenary Beacon Lighting & Concert at St Mary’s Church – at which this book was first distributed

This book and the events listed here would not have been possible without the dedication and commitment of members of the working party including Dr Nick Young; the Thatcham Branch of the Royal British Legion; and the Royal School of Military Survey at Denison Barracks.
